THE MAN WHO BLUFFED.

Or the American Traveler as Pictured by an English Tourist.

"I put up with all kinds of swindles and all sorts of hotels making my European trip," said a lawyer the other day, according to London Tit-Bits, "but at Rome I found an American who wouldn't be swindled. At Rome the landlord of the hotel deliberately robbed me by charging up extras I had never even heard of, but when he tried the same game on the chap from Ohio there was a situation."

"Sir!" he said to the landlord, as he towered over him, "I am Gen. Abercrombie Burt. I am, furthermore, the United States of America. I'll declare war and blow old Rome off her seven hills before I'll pay these items!"

"They were promptly crossed off, and in the eyes of the landlord the general was five times a bigger man than any English lord who had ever occupied his rooms. At Florence the hotel man sized up the general as 'fair to medium,' and gave him poor quarters and insisted that he could do no better. It took the man from the west about 15 minutes to get his dander up. Then he appeared in the office, and drawing himself up to his full height he imperiously announced:

"Sir! I am the United States of America and a considerable slice of Canada and Alaska. What is your lowest price for this hotel for spot cash?"

"But what is the matter?" asked the landlord.

"The matter is that I want to be lodged as befits my position. If you don't sell to me I'll buy the terrace opposite and build a million-dollar hotel and let all my guests stop free of expense!"

"The general got a suite of rooms that were being held for a duke, and everybody around the hotel tumbled over themselves to wait upon him."

THE BROAD JUMPER.

Goes at It Systematically to Get the Best Results.

Every schoolboy thinks that he can broad-jump, and so he can to a certain degree. But this event is one which should be gone at systematically to get at the best results. The jumper, says G. W. Orton, in St. Nicholas, should first carefully notice his stride on going up to the take-off, so that he can mark off a distance (say 25 yards back), and by stepping on this mark with one of his feet as he runs by he will be sure to strike the take-off when he comes to it. The jumper cannot be sure of getting his best efforts into the jump unless he is practically sure of hitting the take-off. After this has been acquired, the athlete can get to work.

In this run the jumper's highest speed should be reached at about 10 or 12 feet before the take-off, so that he can gather himself for the jump. After leaving the take-off he should shoot out and up. He must have elevation or his efforts will be in vain. He should go into the air at an angle of at least 45 degrees. A good way to get this elevation is by placing a hurdle in the jumping-pit and jumping over it. The jumper should gather himself together as he goes through the air and at the finish, just before alighting, he should force himself on by a spasmodic effort with his arms and body. The legs should also be held forward so that they will strike the ground at the farthest possible distance. Practice will show how far out the feet can be thrown without the athlete's falling back into the pit. It must be remembered that the greater the speed the farther out the feet can be thrown with safety. A great deal of practice is necessary to become a good broad jumper, but this is an event which it is not well to practice too frequently, as it is very hard on the legs. The broad jumper will therefore not expect to get at his best during the first season.

Long Tail Feathers.

Extra long tail-feathers in fowls, with suppression of the moult, have been produced in England by Mr. J. T. Cunningham through what is believed to be an imitation of Japanese methods. Two cocks of the long-tailed Japanese variety were hatched January 13, 1901. One bird was left to nature, and its tail ceased growing in March, 1902, when the longest feather measured two feet 4 1/2 inches. Moulting followed normally in the autumn. The other bird had the feathers stroked between the thumb and finger every day, with a slight pull on the ropts, and growth continued until July, the greatest length reached being two feet nine inches. Feathers pulled out were replaced by new ones, which grew through the moulting season.
